

"With God on our side who can be against us?"

There are many people in the world today who must feel God is not on their side. They are hungry, living in poverty and deprived of so much of what we take as the everyday normality of our lives. Water does not flow from their taps, roofs are not over their heads, their children do not even know, never mind wear, designer names. It is estimated that nearly 750 million people live in extreme poverty with millions more living in unacceptable poverty and conditions. God could all too easily be perceived as distant from or non-existent in the lives of so many. Yet we are told that God has carved us in the Palm of His Hand and is with us always to the end of time.

God is present and he wants to walk towards those hundreds of millions of people and bring to them hope, bring to them justice, bring to them a decent and meaningful existence. "I have no hands now but yours" the hymn tells us - God tells us. When people walk towards each other and work for each other in a spirit of decency, God is moving among them and stirring up something very noble in their hearts. Simply put, it is love of neighbour, it is hearing the cry of the poor and it is responding.

When God stirs hearts into action and response, then wonderful and life changing events occur. God is then truly with people and the scripture passage is beyond question "With God on our side who can be against us?" Nobody - if God is truly allowed to be within us and if we allow God direct us towards the good, then nobody can be against us - nobody can be against the poor, nobody can stand idly by and watch others suffer or be deprived.

The Transfiguration, featured in today's Gospel, did not last too long but its impact was intense. The disciples wanted to capture the moment, put a roof over it and remain in it. Jesus knew this was not where he needed them. Mountain tops and religious highs were for another day. For now, he needed them to retrace their steps, go down the mountain and meet people at ground level. It is only when you look into the eyes of another, meet them where they are, that you can truly see what is going on in their lives.

"Lord, it is wonderful for us to be here"
